Don't work too hard. God meant us to work every day until we are weary, but not until we are so weary that a night's rest cannot revive and restore us to strength and vigor again. When you rise morning after morning with weary limbs and weary heart, you are breaking the laws of health and your punishment is and will be heavy. You must let go somewhere. The world, your friends and family have no right to expect from you more than you can do, and if you are a wise woman you will not give all the strength and warmth of your life to labor and have only the dregs left for love. Keep enough strength, take enough rest to preserve a cheerful and a bright face, when the family gather about the fireside after the day's work is done. Do one thing at a time. Don't hurry, don't worry. Face the issue of life fairly and squarely; do your share of the work, that is, what you can do without injuring yourself, and put the rest absolutely behind you. Take some relaxation. Every human being needs recreation and amusement of some sort. Get it from books or from people with news and helpful thoughts, that will keep your ideas bright and your heart cheerful.

We shall not have our grandmothers with us long and may not be the thoughtless to cheer her and make her as happy as we can, while opportunity is given us.

Mother.

To the young ladies who read this column, we are moved by the good spirit to write a few words concerning their duties to their mother. It may be that you have noticed a careworn look upon her face lately. Of course it has not been brought there by any act of yours; still it is your duty to chase it away. Would it not be a happy surprise to her if you should bid her sit down and rest while you perform the arduous duties in hand? And how a tender kiss on her mouth would cause her dear face to brighten. Anyway you owe her a kiss or two. Away back when you were a little bit of a girl she kissed you when no one was tempted by your fever-tainted breath and swollen face. You were not so attractive then as you are now. And through those years of childish sunshine and shadows, she was always ready to heal to cure by the magic of mother's kiss, your little, dirty, chubby hands whenever they were fingered in the best of mischief with the rough old wood.

And then the midnight kiss with which she roused so many bad dreams as she leaned above your restless pillow, having all been on interest these long, long years.

Of course she is not so pretty and kissable as you are; but if you had done your share of the work the last ten years, the contrast would not be so marked.

Her face has more wrinkles than yours, and yet if you were sick that face would appear far more beautiful than an angel's as it hovered over you watching every opportunity to minister to your comfort, and everyone of these wrinkles seemed to be bright wavelets of sunshine chasing each other over her dear face.

She will leave you one of these days. These blisters if not lifted from her shoulders, will break her down. Those rough, hard hands that have done so many necessary things for you, will be crossed upon her helpless breast.

Those neglected lips that gave you your first baby kiss will be forever closed, and those sad tired eyes will have opened on eternity, and then you will appreciate your mother; but it will be too late.

WILSON CALLS CONGRESS TO MEET

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE WILL BE DEVOTED TO TARIFF PRINCIPALLY, IT'S SAID.

SPECIAL MESSAGE ON MATTER OF CURRENCY MAY FOLLOW.

The Committee of the House Will Be Ready to Report Promptly When Congress Convenes and Get at Work.

President Wilson has issued the formal proclamation convening congress in extra session at noon, April 7.

The president's pronouncement is brief and followed form closely. It stated merely that "whereas, public interests require," congress would be convened in extra session by order of the executive.

Originally, Mr. Wilson had fixed on April 1 as the date, Rep. Underwood, the democratic leader, having informed him that the tariff bills, to which it is agreed congress should give immediate attention, would be ready on that date. Mr. Underwood found, however, that the ways and means committee would need another week to draft the tariff schedules and today's proclamation is in deference to the wishes of Leader Underwood and house leaders.

The absence of any specific reason for the calling of the extra session is explained in that Mr. Wilson's statement immediately after his election declared that he would call an extra session to revise the tariff.

President Wilson plans to spend out specifically his wishes for the extra session in his first message in preparation. This it is known from later the president has had with members of congress, will outline the administration's idea of how the tariff should be revised and just what schedules should be taken up. The order is general, that the entire message will be taken up with a discussion of the tariff, with the exception of the last paragraph of two, which will draw attention to the need of currency legislation and will indicate the purpose of the president to send later a special message on that or other subjects which he believes should be taken up by the new congress.

The tariff bill will be submitted first to a caucus and then directly to the house by the ways and means committee.

"The committee will be ready to report by that time," said Democratic Leader Underwood. "We have already had a meeting, and we will be able to report the revised plan, when the congress convenes."

The majority of the ways and means committee appear taking up the administration's features of the new tariff. Those provisions relate to the variety of custom house routine and the duty of the duties in changing the terms and phraseology of the tariff schedules, and the duty of the duties in changing the terms and phraseology of the tariff schedules, and the duty of the duties in changing the terms and phraseology of the tariff schedules.

In the interest of the government and the importers. A number of changes along that line were suggested by witnesses during the tariff hearings in January.

The tariff revision plan will be in such condition that congress will be able to determine on the tariff, the changes determined on can be reported immediately out of the committee and the whole tariff discussion formally opened up in the house without delay.

There will be no attempt to handle all or even the bulk of the house committee at the outset of the extra session, that being reserved under the present tariff toward the close of the extra session so as to obviate any unnecessary legislation until the regular session of congress convenes in December. The ways and means committee personnel already has been determined upon in democratic caucus of the six-third congress and it will be ratified by the house at the opening of the extra session, when the committee on rules, mileage and accounts also will be named. Whether any other committees will be created for doing business at the extra session depends on developments between now and April 7.

AN ENGLISH MOB ASSAILS WOMEN

LONDON MOB OF TEN THOUSAND ATTACK SUFFRAGETTES IN HYDE PARK SUNDAY.

POLICE DRIVEN ABOUT AS MUD AND STONES ARE THROWN.

Only After a Long Hard Scrap Are the Brutal Male Britons Gotten Under Control and the Women Saved More Violence.

The suffragettes, who again attempted to hold a Sunday afternoon meeting in Hyde Park, London, were mobbed by a crowd of 10,000 persons. They were pelted with clods of turf, oranges and other missiles, and when the police were escorting them from the scene, the rioters tore off the hats and cloaks of the women and even struck some of them in the face.

For two hours the park, where demonstrations until recently were held in peace, and Oxford street, near by, were the scenes of wildest disorder.

The trouble began when "Gen." Mrs. Flora Drummond mounted a wagon and started to speak to the great assembly, which was largely made up of youths, who had armed themselves with ammunition of various descriptions, or with trumpets, mouth organs and bells. Her appearance at the front of the platform was the signal for an outburst of deafening noise and a bombardment of missiles. She had hardly uttered a word when a clod of turf struck her in the mouth.

Mrs. Drummond maintained her good nature, smiled at her tormentors and continued her speech, amid a constant shower of abuse, cat calls, rotten oranges and clods of "go home to your children."

For half an hour the crowds shouted, sang and pelted the suffragette with missiles of every kind. Mrs. Drummond's speech, of which not a word was audible, ended and a younger woman took her place. She fared no better and the police, realizing the danger the women were in, called on the chairman to close the meeting.

A large force of police, mounted and on foot, drew in about the suffragette wagon, and under this escort the women were led out of the park, followed by a jeering crowd, which continued to pelt them with missiles over the heads and through the lines of constables.

The police endeavored to pilot the women to the tube station, but the crowd brushed them aside and dragged the women up and down the street. In the police one woman's eye was blackened and the clothes of all were torn and disheveled.

The police after half an hour's struggle got the upper hand, and succeeded in getting the badly mauled women into the tube, from which they were hurried away and taken to hospital.

The attack on the suffragettes was described by a Londoner who was on the scene. "Hundreds of boys had assembled ready for mischief and they caused a scene which is seldom witnessed in a London park where freedom of speech is accorded the adherents of every propaganda."

One of the speakers, a Miss Rogers, collapsed as she was being escorted from the park and her cries were heard on the point of being torn from her when the police succeeded in rescuing the woman.

It was a regular stand-up fight between the police and the crowds, the former striking on the head and left and endeavoring to arrest the clods and other missiles, the latter, however, would come to the aid of those seized by the police and forcibly take them out of their hands.

EASTER OBSERVANCES AT HOME AND ABROAD

EASTER is the principal festival of the Christian year, observed in commemoration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The resurrection took place just after the Jewish feast of the Passover. The Christians of Jerusalem, and after them those of the Asiatic churches generally, were accustomed to hold the feast of Easter on this same day, or simultaneously with the feast of the Jewish Passover. This custom was not acceptable to the Gentile churches in Italy and the west generally, and they changed the time of Easter observance to the Sunday following the fourteenth day of the moon, and this difference of practice led to grave discussions between the east and the west, which were finally settled by the agreement at the council of Nice in the early part of the fourth century to make the western usage universal. From that time

NEW YORK FIFTH AVENUE

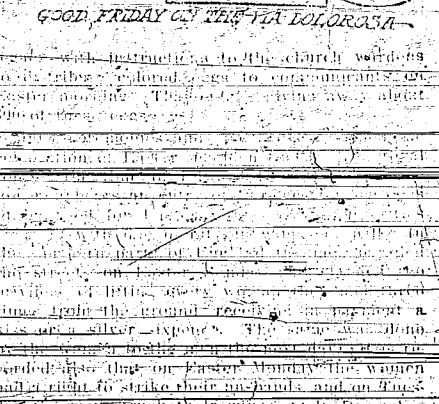

GOOD FRIDAY AT THE VA LOKORAZA

Easter has been observed not only in Christian Europe and America but far across the sea in the ancient strongholds of pagan superstition. And so it has come to pass that the very word Easter thrills the heart with gladness, bringing its welcome, announcing that the dawn of a new day, and the time of joy and blossom, leaf and spray, flowering wheat and golden corn, floating about and pulsing in the air, the time of gladness and beauty and growing and ripening of high vitality in plant and human life alike—that wonderful time has come again.

In every Christian land the season is observed with more religious fervor. In Jerusalem, the Holy City, the place of the resurrection, the Easter observance is the most solemn and the most ancient. The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the central theme of the Easter festival. The observance of Easter is a religious duty for all Christians. The observance of Easter is a religious duty for all Christians. The observance of Easter is a religious duty for all Christians.

ESSENTIAL POINTS IN HORSE BREEDING

Brood Mare and Colt

A few words of advice to the farmer who intends breeding his mare this season may not be amiss. There is certainly room for improvement in the way some men attend to this part of their work. Seemingly, they do not mix in enough brains and common sense.

Each breeder should firmly impress upon his mind the fact that he should be wide enough that the mare will have no trouble in passing through them. A narrow doorway, or a small space, is sometimes the occasion of the mare being seriously injured. The mare should be handled with care, and the foal should be handled with care. The mare should be handled with care, and the foal should be handled with care.

PROFIT MADE IN RAISING SWEET PEAS

Plant Does Not Need Any Special Soil to Attain Grace and Beauty—Few Hail.

On the other hand, if the choice is made to raise sweet peas, it will be found that the soil is not so important as it is for other crops. The soil should be rich and well-drained, and the plants should be planted in rows, with the plants in each row spaced at least six inches apart.

Paul Jones at Rest.

The final placing of the body of John Paul Jones in the crypt which has been constructed under the memorial chapel at the Naval Academy at Annapolis is the occasion of the greatest gratification to numerous naval officers, members of the Naval League of the United States and to other patriotic citizens who have long deplored the apparent neglect of this country to pay due respect to one of the nation's greatest naval heroes. And in this connection the annual gratitude is felt by Representative George A. Loomis of Michigan, who introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives last week, that the body of John Paul Jones be placed in the crypt at the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

and untiring efforts as a member of the Committee on Naval Affairs was due the appropriation by Congress of funds sufficient to construct an appropriate resting place for the gallant admiral. In season and out Colonel Loomis worked to secure from Congress not only an appropriation but an adequate appropriation for this purpose, and the opinion is generally expressed that had it not been for him the body of John Paul Jones would remain still unburied under the stair at Bancroft Hall for no one knows how long. — WASHINGTON POST.

SYNOPSIS.

Bill Cannon, the homestead king, and his daughter, Rose, who had received an American education, were in the city of New York.

and yet to switch off on a new subject was not to be thought of at a moment of such emotional intensity. The actor evidently felt this, for he said suddenly with a raised voice, "I am not a man, I am a woman."

passed by a very impatient and ugly temper. Buford had found Miss Cannon one of the most amiable and charming ladies he had ever met. And it was therefore a good deal of a surprise to have her turn upon him a face of cold, reproving disagreement, and remark in a voice that matched it: "I don't agree with you at all, Mr. Buford, and you seem quite to forget that Mr. Ryan has been very sick and is still in great pain."

Buford was exceedingly abashed. He would not have offended Miss Cannon for anything in the world, and it seemed to him that a better recognition of graciousness and consideration would be the first to convince an exhibition of ill-humor such as young Ryan had just made. He stammered an apologetic sentence and it did not add to his comfort to see that she was not entirely mollified by it and he felt that she showed a slight disposition to give up the idea of a social dinner and take him for a walk.

nick had been not a man but a patient about the same to her as the doll is to the little girl. Then when he began to get better, and the man rose, tingling with renewed life, from the mat of the patient, she quickly fell back into the old position. With the inherited, dainty deceptiveness of generations of women, who, while they were virtuous, were also charming, she relinquished her domination and retreated into that enfolded maidenly reserve and docility which we feel quite sure was the manner adopted by the ladies of the Stone Age when they felt it necessary to manage their lords.

She was as unconscious of all this as Domitiek was of his growing absorption in her. If he was troubled she was not. The days saw her grow busier, pryer, more blithe and light-hearted. She sang about the corridors, her smile grew more radiant, and every man in the hotel felt the glow of her weathered cheeks and heard her laugh and chatter of domestic life still sustained by the fresh blue.

The Forty Year Test.

An article must have exceptional merit to survive a period of forty years. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was first offered to the public in 1872. From a small beginning it has grown in favor and popularity until it has attained a world-wide reputation. You will find nothing better for a child or adult, try it and you will understand why it is a favorite after a period of forty years. It not only cures, but it soothes. For sale by all druggists.
